

TEACH YOUR CHILDREN ABOUT SUKKOT!

Sukkot helps children better understand the covenant relationship God desires to have with them. It teaches them about His faithfulness, provision, and protection.

Teaching your children about Sukkot shifts their thoughts from fear and unbelief to confidence and assurance. Teach them about....

CONFIDENCE

Every child needs to feel confident. When they understand their confidence is from the Lord, they will be equipped to receive above and beyond what they could ask. This confidence ties them to their identity as a King's kid, knowing they can boldly approach the throne in their time of need.

COVENANT

Everything a Believer has access to is because of a covenant relationship with the Father made possible through the blood of Jesus. If children do not understand the fundamental principle of covenant, they won't know the inheritance and family they've been grafted into. Sukkot is a time to help your children see that God always comes through on His covenant promises.

DWELLING

Because of Jesus, the Holy Spirit dwells within us. During Sukkot, reflect on how God instructed the Israelites to build dwellings, or sukkahs, in the desert, representing His provision and protection. He wants your children to experience the reality of His indwelling Spirit too.

PROVISION

The Lord longs to be and dwell with us. During Sukkot, teach your children that dwelling and walking in God's presence releases His supernatural provision and protection. It is under the protection of His wing that they will find refuge.

HONOR

The Feast of Sukkot is one of the three yearly pilgrim feasts—times when God instructed the Israelites to journey to the Temple, worshiping and honoring Him. Sukkot opens the door for them to honor the Lord according to His Word, commemorating and remembering His provision and protection in the desert.
